The NQMBC is the only breast care-specific quality management program of its type.

F. Lee Tucker, MD, FCAP Breast Pathologist, President Virginia Biomedical Laboratories, LLC

Breast centers choosing to participate in the NQMBC will join a national quality documentation program based on clearly defined measures with a decade of experience, hundreds of participants and millions of data points. Participants possess the ability to confidentially compare themselves to all other program users with immediate feedback using user-specified filters to enhance relevance to one's own breast center. In addition, the program allows participants to track their own performance over time. Participants may select any number of measures for submission—from one to the entire complement of measures.

The NQMBC is the only breast care-specific quality management program of its type, offering performance monitoring of service delivery, professional performance and clinical outcomes across the patient's journey from screening through diagnostics, surgery and adjuvant therapies. The NQMBC measures will soon incorporate all of Medicare's PQRS breast care measures so that programs will be able to immediately assess their performance compared to peers for all patients in addition to Medicare beneficiaries. NQMBC is working with industry to automate the data collection process to reduce the time and resources necessary to develop a quality management program. Through participation in NQMBC, data reporting requirements of accrediting agencies and payors can be met.

The NQMBC envisions and intends to facilitate a concise national breast care dataset based on performance measures with standardized definitions.
